Stacey Crawshaw-Lewis serves as lead attorney for Pacifica's bond and/or disclosure counsel teams serving the University of Washington, University of Oregon, Oregon State University, Portland State University, King County and Kitsap County, the Washington State Convention Center Public Facilities District, the Port of Seattle, the cities of Bellevue and Tacoma, and others.

Stacey has significant experience in financings involving general obligation bonds, revenue bonds (senior, intermediate and subordinate), lease revenue bonds, commercial paper, and other financing structures as well as letter of credit reimbursement, other credit/liquidity facilities, and hedge agreements. She is frequently retained to advise county, city, and other municipal clients on the range of revenue options available under state law, including lodging taxes, emergency medical services levies, affordable housing levies, levy lid lifts, and excess levies, as well as in the use of special purpose entities such as public development authorities, public facilities districts, metropolitan park districts, and transportation benefit districts.

Stacey has been recognized by Best Lawyers in America in Public Finance Law for over 10 years, including selection as Lawyer of the Year in Public Finance Law in Seattle for 2017, and has been consistently selected for inclusion by Washington Super Lawyers. She has served on the Board of Directors for the National Association of Bond Lawyers. Stacey was awarded the National Association of Bond Lawyers (NABL) 2020 Carlson Prize for her work as the lead author of the article "Practical Considerations in Electronic Disclosure by State and Municipal Bond Issuers" that was published in the 2020 Spring issue of The Bond Lawyer and the 2019 Fall edition of the Municipal Finance Journal.

Stacey and her husband Jeff enjoy playing and watching soccer. Stacey is a certified master gardener, and especially enjoys growing vegetables.
